THE SOCIETY FOR IRANIAN STUDIES

The Society for Iranian Studies (SIS) was established in the United States as a scholarly association for the study of Iranian culture and society. The Society was created to promote high standards of research, scholarship, and instruction on various aspects of Iranian history, religions, languages, literatures, socioeconomic conditions, politics, and the arts. Over the past three decades, SIS has become the principal professional association of scholars and researchers involved in the study of Iran.

The major scholarly arm of the Society is its quarterly journal, Iranian Studies, which has been published continuously since 1968, and which is available in most major academic libraries and research institutions around the world. In addition, the Society publishes regularly a newsletter, SIS Newsletter, cosponsors panels and the annual meetings of the Middle East Studies Association (MESA), and organizes seminars and conferences on Iranian studies.

The Society's membership includes several hundred scholars and students of Iranian culture and society in the United States, Iran, Europe, Japan, and elsewhere. SIS is a not-for-profit, tax-exempt corporation registered in the State of New York.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF IRANIAN STUDIES

The American Institute of Iranian Studies (AIIS) was founded on 28 December 1967 by 20 American universities engaged in teaching subjects pertaining to the civilization of Iran and with interests in programs of academic research in Iran. The Institute operates on a not-for-profit basis for the promotion of scholarly research in all relevant academic disciplines relating to Iran and adjacent regions historically influenced by Iranian culture and/or languages. AIIS is governed by a Board of Trustees each member of which is appointed by and represents one of the member universities or museums. Several Trustees-at-large are elected for three year terms as well. Officers of the Institute are elected for two year terms by the Trustees and include a President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer. Presently, AIIS has a small office at the University of Arizona.

From the late 1960's until the late 1970's AIIS established a branch office in Tehran to serve as an information and administration center for research in Iran by American and other scholars and to provide information and assistance for their research. The Tehran Center was staffed by a resident Director and had a research library as well as a small hostel where academics could reside. One of the principal goals of AIIS is to re-establish the branch office in Tehran with the cooperation of the Islamic Republic of Iran. Within the last several decades AIIS has continued to support Iranian studies through sponsoring conferences, publications, dissertation research awards, and other endeavors.

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE — AND THE PROGRAM

The Program Committee for the Second Biennial Conference on Iranian Studies is pleased to welcome you to the Conference. In its twelve sessions, the Program features a total of thirty four panels and workshops covering all areas of Iranian studies over a historical period that stretches from the antiquity to the present. In addition, it features a Plenary Symposium where leading scholars assess the state of scholarship in the major fields of scholarship, including the fine arts, history, literature, and social sciences; a closing session on the modes and mediums of intellectual exchange in contemporary Iran; and two cultural events scheduled for the evening hours.

The Committee began its work with the broadest possible definition of the field of Iranian Studies as envisioned by the sponsoring organizations, the American Institute for Iranian Studies (AIrS) and the Society for Iranian Studies (SIS). It sought to reflect both the depth and the diversity of the Iranian culture area as well as the different disciplinary and interdisciplinary approaches that have been applied to studying it. We are happy to see that the Conference features research not only on the country of Iran but on Afghanistan, Central Asia, the Caucasus, the Indian subcontinent, and the Persian Gulf.

The Program is the result of a year of close collaboration among the members of the Committee, between the Committee and the sponsoring organizations, and between both of these and the larger community of scholars studying the Iranian culture area. It is our hope that the Conference will help stimulate a lively exchange of ideas in the community of scholars who study this culture area. We sincerely hope that that our gathering will foster greater and more diverse scholarship as we approach the third century of Iranian studies in the Western world.

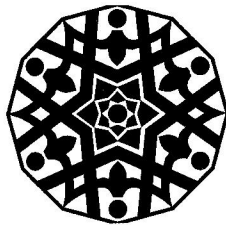

—THE PROGRAM COMMITTEE

ANNOUNCEMENT: FOUNDATION OF A NEW ACADEMIC SOCIETY

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE STUDY OF PERSIAN-SPEAKING SOCIETIES

The IASPS was founded in 1996, after several rounds of discussions in different countries among scholars in history and the social sciences who specialize on Afghanistan, Tajikistan, Iran and the Indian subcontinent. The Association seeks to promote the study of the societies that share the rich historical heritage of the Persian civilization and culture. Its objectives are to bring the academic communities in an important region into contact with the international scholarly community, to encourage intellectual exchange and communication, and to promote cooperative international research. The broader purpose of the foundation of the IASPS can be described as the strengthening of civil society in the Persian-speaking countries and the related regions in Central Asia and India by creating a viable independent international professional association.

This year, the IASPS has begun administering a Travel Fellowship Program for scholars from Iran to attend conferences in the United States. The first Newsletter is planned for this summer, and the first issue of the Association's Journal for the following year. We hope to hold the first biennial convention in the region in

MAZDA PUBLISHERS

Academic Publishers Since 1980

Call For Manuscripts

Mazda Publishers has consistently excelled in the area of scholarly publishing since 1980. It has traditionally produced quality texts, reference materials, art, literary works and general interest books for both researchers and the public at large. Titles touch on a wide variety of topics such as politics, religion, history, language and culture. In addition, it offers an enticing collection of imported works, reasonably priced and conveniently available for institutions, individuals, and the trade.

Mazda Publishers currently publishes about fifteen new titles per year and plans to increase production significantly. The editors are now seeking manuscripts concerned with all aspects of scholarly studies of the Middle East and North Africa, in general, and Iran, in particular. Studies dealing with former Soviet Republics are especially welcomed. If you have a manuscript or are in the process of writing one, our editors will review your work when you submit a proposal.

In your publication proposal, please include a table of contents and a cogent description of the contents, chapter by chapter. The inclusion of a list of references plus at least one or two sample chapters to indicate the writing style, level of interest, and type of treatment is appreciated. It is also helpful if you explain the rationale for writing your manuscript and whom you think will want to buy a copy of the book. Are there any complementary or competing books on the market today? What is the approximate length and the estimated completion date of the manuscript? And does your work have any special requirements or challenges in areas such as editing, translation, typesetting, illustrations, color processing, time lines, etc. Send this information, along with a curriculum vitae of your research and publication activities, to the Acquisitions Editor in care of this publisher.

Blind Owl Press

A new imprint of Mazda Publishers devoted exclusively to the publication of literary works in English by writers in exile. These works include fiction, poetry, plays, and also the personal memoirs of established writers.

The name of the press is taken from The Blind Owl, the acclaimed novel by the Iranian writer Sadeq Hedayat, who wrote and published his book in 1937 while in exile in India. Artistically, this work is emblematic of the press's aspiration to publish literature of similar distinctive merit which might not otherwise reach the attention of the general reading public.

The press invites submissions from writers in exile from all countries, and will initiate its series in 1998 by publishing works by two native-born Iranians: Donn  Raffat and Saïdeh Pakravan. Thereafter the press intends to publish four books annually.

Submissions

The editors would like to see samples (20-30 pages) with outlines before considering whole manuscripts. The initial response time will be less than two months. Please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope with every submission, otherwise your work will not be returned. Fax queries or electronic/disk mailings for initial submissions are not accepted, nor will telephone calls or letters hasten the process. Submissions will be returned, or the author will be contacted, after editorial review of the proposal. Please send your submissions to: The Editor, Blind Owl Press, in care of Mazda Publishers.

Robert B. Mason (Oct. '98)

The Sands of Oxus: Boyhood Reminiscences of Sadriddin Aini, John Perry & Rachel Lehr (Oct. '98)

Traditional Persian Art Music: The Radif of Mirza Abdullah, Dariush Tala'i (Dec. '98)

The Sharafn ma, Book One, by Sharaf al-D n Bit l s , tr. by Mehrdad R. Izady (Dec. '98)

Works in Progress

Half the World: The Social Architecture of Safavid Isfahan, 1590-1722, Stephen P. Blake

Radicals at Home and Abroad: Iranian Student Opposition to the Shah, M.R. Pahlavi, Afshin Matin-asgari

... and many more!
